Bavaria in Brussels

The Bavarian Representation in Brussels

The Representation of the Free State of Bavaria to the European Union in Brussels sees itself as an interface between Bavaria and Brussels. As a department of the Bavarian State Chancellery it represents the interests of the Free State of Bavaria in the European Union, provides information on topics of Bavarian concern and represents the Free State in Brussels.

In addition, the representation supports Eric Beißwenger as State Minister for European and International Affairs.

European policy is domestic policy: More than 50 percent of German domestic politics are determined by European law. In some areas, such as economic, agricultural and environmental policy, it is up to 80 percent. Representing Bavarian interests in Brussels and Strasbourg is therefore just as important as representing interests on the federal level.

Interface between Bavaria and Brussels

The Representation of the Free State of Bavaria to the European Union in Brussels supports Eric Beißwenger in fulfilling his duties as State Minister for European and International Affairs. As an interface between Bavaria and Brussels, it informs the State Government, the Bavarian Parliament, the State Administration as well as Bavarian entrepreneurs and citizens at an early stage about important political processes at the European Union. It influences the political decision-making process in the European Union, advises and assists in contacting EU offices and cooperates with other European regional representations based in Brussels. Another important task is the presentation of the Free State in Brussels by means of cultural and political events.

Department of the Bavarian State Chancellery

In organisational terms, the Bavarian Representation in Brussels is a department of the State Chancellery. The representation's 37 employees create a dense information network to European decision-makers. Diverse working contacts with the Brussels-based institutions, in particular with the European Commission, the European Parliament, the Council of the European Union, the Committee of the Regions as well as with representations of other regions enable an effective representation of Bavaria's interests.

Forum for regional, cultural and political Events

The Bavarian Representation is a forum for various events. Each year, it organises a number of events with many prominent guests and hosts. The spectrum ranges from regular specialist working groups to conferences and discussions, cultural events and major events. A special feature is the biennial Oktoberfest, which is organised by the Bavarian Representation according to the traditional Bavarian model.

Contact point for European concerns

The Bavarian Representation is open to all visitors with „European matters of interest“: e.g. politicians, citizens, administrations, enterprises and universities. A lot of guests visit the Representation each year and gather insights in its work and current European policy issues.

The representation: Historical building and former Institut Pasteur du Brabant

The former Institut Pasteur du Brabant was built in 1903 as a microbiological research facility and was used as such until 1987. At the end of 2001, the Free State of Bavaria acquired this property at the heart of the European District in Brussels to house the Representation of the Free State of Bavaria. This was followed by extensive renovation and repair work on the badly dilapidated building fabric. Since September 2004, the property has been used as the headquarters of the Representation of the Free State of Bavaria to the European Union. The property consists of a total of three building parts: The former director's villa belonging to the institute was built in 1905 as a solid structure with a brick facade and sandstone elements. The Marstall building, the original horse stable, and the adjoining building were also built between 1903 and 1905 with a brick facade and sandstone elements. The facade is still in its original state today.

Concept: Gentle redevelopment of the historic ensemble

The concept of the new representation for the Free State of Bavaria provided for a careful renovation with new additions to the villa and Marstall building. These additions should fit into the historical ensemble. It was not intended to make major changes to the building stock, but to rehabilitate the ensemble under aspects of monument protection. Thus, parking lots have only been built insofar as they are absolutely necessary for the operation of the representation. By doing so, the representation was able to avoid possible adverse effects (e.g. noise) for the surrounding park.

Institute

The ensemble's main building was in need of substantial refurbishment and renovation. However, the building structure was still good at the core. In particular, the floors had proved to be sufficiently stable for the intended use. The entire technological infrastructure of the building as well as an extensive part of the attic were renewed and an elevator was installed. The historic sandstone facade was carefully cleaned, replacing the old destroyed windows with new wooden ones. Their structure and character resemble the historic windows. The roof truss was equally rebuilt and the roof provided with a new slate cover referring to its historical appearance. With its representative architectural style, the institute building is ideally suited to the requirements of a regional representation. The Institute is now home to the offices of the Minister-President and the State Minister as well as to several meeting rooms and offices.

Villa

There are mostly offices in the villa. The facades were renovated with regard to thermal technology and new windows were used according to the historical model. The roof truss was dismantled and rebuilt. The historic brick masonry facade was carefully cleaned and minor defects were repaired. Since the villa does not offer enough spacial capacities, an extension was added. It is reduced in appearance and its eaves height do not exceed the old villa's eaves.

Marstall: Former stables and today's event hall

The old Marstall building is now used as an event area. The foyer and the catering kitchen for the large hall are situated here. Its facade was also carefully cleaned, defects repaired and the windows rebuilt using old materials according to the historical appearance. All the details relevant to the appearance, such as the cornices, the door and the window constructions, were designed to fit the historical models. The outbuilding to the Marstall was in such a bad condition that a renovation no longer made sense. This was the only part of the building in the entire ensemble that needed to be demolished. The outbuilding was replaced by the large event hall, which now connects with the Marstall building. In the choice of materials, this new building was adapted to the historical building materials. Although its structural outer wall is made of reinforced concrete, it has been provided with a facing made of exposed brickwork. The eaves height of the new building remained below the one of the historic Marstall building. Also the apex of the glass roof ends right below the roof ridge of the Marstall building.

Premises as part of Parc Léopold

The Institute grounds should be preserved and redeveloped as a part of Parc Léopold. The reason why the Representation is not surrounded by a high wall and demarcated from it today. Only the unavoidable security precautions were put in place, but these have in no way had a negative impact on the appearance of the overall complex. The visual connection between the Institut Pasteur du Brabant and Parc Léopold was preserved and even significantly enhanced with the landscaping and new plantings. Today, visitors enter the Bavarian Representation via Rue Wiertz.

Low Emission Zone Brussels

In Brussels a low emission zone (LEZ) was introduced in January 2018. The license plates of all vehicles entering the LEZ are automatically recorded by cameras. The Brussels environmental zone covers the entire Brussels region, with the exception of the Ring motorway. Vehicles with a non-Belgian registration number must be registered free of charge. Drivers of unregistered vehicles must be prepared for penalty payments.
